Tilden Residents Encouraged to Help Shape the Future of Local Parks New Workshop Times Announced for Parks and Recreation Master Plan

TILDEN, NE October 24, 2025 – Excitement is growing in Tilden as the city takes the next step toward creating a long-term vision for its parks and recreation system. New time slots have been added for the upcoming Parks and Recreation Master Plan Workshops on Monday, November 3, giving more residents the chance to take part in this important community effort.

The workshops will bring residents together to share ideas, discuss priorities, and help guide the future of Tilden's parks, playgrounds, trails, and recreation facilities. Participants will focus on well-loved community spaces such as Horseshoe Park, Richie Ashburn Park, and Sunset Park, offering input on how these areas can best serve the community in years to come.

Momentum for park improvements has been building throughout the city. Recent developments include the planned splash pad, the bond-approved construction of new football and baseball fields on Tilden's north side, and the TMG Foundation's initiative to build a new city auditorium. These exciting projects highlight the need for a coordinated master plan that will guide future investments and ensure Tilden's recreational complement each other.

Workshops will be held at the City Council meeting room, and each will have the following start times:

- 12:00 PM
- 4:00 PM
- 6:30 PM

RSVPs can be submitted at TildenParkRec.com or by scanning the QR code:

All Tilden-area residents are encouraged to attend one of the sessions and share their perspectives. Feedback collected during the workshops will directly shape the city's Parks and Recreation Master Plan and inform a community-wide survey.

With new facilities on the horizon and strong community enthusiasm, Tilden is taking bold steps toward a more connected, active, and vibrant future—one park at a time.
